RUTGERS SCHOOL OF MANAGEMENT AND LABOR RELATIONS

DID YOU KNOW?

- » Rutgers School of Management and Labor Relations is recognized globally as the leading source of expertise on the world of work, organization building, and employment relations.
- » Faculty of the Department of Human Resource Management are the most frequently published and cited in the country.
- » The school benefits from a rich history, having been established by an act of state legislature to promote new forms of labor-management cooperation following postwar industrial unrest.
- » Today, the school prioritizes access through traditional undergraduate and graduate degrees as well as an online bachelor of science degree completion program, designed to enable individuals from all walks of life to build skills for the workforce.
- » Originally constructed with major gifts from labor unions, the Labor Education Center is an international symbol of the labor movement's commitment to providing education for working people.
- » The school is approaching its 20th anniversary, and while it celebrates this milestone, its facilities—such as the newly acquired entirety of the Janice H. Levin building—are showing their age.

Honor the school's history and pledge a vote of confidence in its future with a private donation. Your gifts will support:

- » Endowments of all sizes for ongoing support
- » Student scholarships to help the best and brightest succeed
- » Programming to strengthen undergraduate offerings while maintaining world-class graduate programs
- » Technology upgrades, including possible smart-room capabilities to enhance learning
- » Facility renovations to revamp or develop collaborative work spaces, classrooms, and lounge areas

Private philanthropy will enhance the student experience and fortify the Rutgers School of Management and Labor Relations' infrastructure. Your support will make a difference, and every gift is greatly appreciated.
